Sexual History: Expression, Regulation, and Rights in the West Since 1800 2023-24 | Fall 2023 | online asynchronous

Instructor: Monda Halpern, Professor

Email: halpern@uwo.ca

This is a draft syllabus. Please see the course site on OWL for a final version.

Course Description:

This course examines the history of sexuality from the nineteenth century to the present, investigating sexual desire, behaviour, and ideologies. Topics include the body, marriage, reproduction, prostitution, same-sex relations, and religious, medical and psychiatric intervention, and help demonstrate that sexuality has been the object of social scrutiny and political regulation.

Course Syllabus:

Not solely a biological expression that is static and fixed, sexuality is ever-changing, and has a dynamic and vibrant history. This lecture course will examine the history of sexuality from the nineteenth century to the present day. It will investigate sexual desire and behavior, and sexual and gender ideologies, and will explore how they relate to a variety of topics, including perceptions of the body, marriage, reproduction, prostitution, same-sex relations, pornography, disease, and religious, medical, and psychiatric intervention. All of these issues will be studied to underscore the concept that sexuality is both biological and social, and that sexuality and the connected notions of masculinity and femininity (gender) have been the object of intense social scrutiny and political regulation.

Learning Outcomes:

Students should be able to:

- analyze the ways in which gender and sexuality are partly socially constructed, and thus vary over time, place, class, and cultures.
- examine the ways in which the history of sex and sexuality intersect with other historical trends and movements.
- explore the ways in which discourses about sex and sexuality have often been used as a tool of oppression and as a way to promote the status quo.

WEEK 13 (Monday, December 4-Friday, December 8), UNIT 11 PERSONAL REFLECTIONS

- Do the activities that you might have missed – how much more do you now know?
- Peruse the comments of your classmates and TA on FORUMS – do you agree or disagree with their opinions? Why?
- Ponder your views of various topics – have they changed or remained the same?
- Consider all of the weekly lessons – which topic/reading affected you most profoundly? Why?
- Revisit course lectures and readings for your final exam – do any of the issues that they raise intersect with those in your own life? In what ways?

Additional Statements:

Each assessment is designed to be completed within the indicated duration; however, all students will be afforded extra time.

Try to write the assessment as soon as possible within the two-day span as you could be faced with technical problems that require time to address.

During the writing of tests and exams, the use of course lectures, readings, activities, and forums, as well as other online (and offline) resources and communication, is strictly prohibited.

Please review the Department of History's shared policies and statements for all undergraduate courses at:
