

HISTORY 3735F
Global History of Populism
Fall 2025

Instructor: Professor Keith Fleming

Email: kfleming@uwo.ca

Office: Department of History, Lawson Hall 1208

Office Hours: Wednesdays, 10:30 a.m. – 12:30 p.m.

This is a draft outline. Please see the course site on OWL Brightspace for a final version.

Course Description

Populism is one of the most controversial and fervently discussed topics in the social sciences today. While there is much scholarly debate over how precisely populism should be defined, it is generally agreed that all forms of populism include a critique of ‘the establishment/the elite’ and adulation of the ‘common people.’ It is also conventional wisdom that populism originated in the late 19th century as agrarian protest movements in Russia (where narodnichestvo or ‘populism’ appeared in response to hardships encountered by the peasantry in feudal tsarist Russia), and in the United States (where rural discontents were expressed politically via the People’s Party). Today, populism affects almost all continents and political regimes but is especially prevalent in the democracies of Europe and the Americas.

The course begins by considering how best to define ‘populism.’ Next, some recent and high-profile manifestations of populism, including Trumpism, France’s National Front, and Venezuela’s Hugo Chávez will be studied to provide a contemporary context. The principal focus of the course surveys the global history of populism and its main populist actors over the past 150 years, focusing specifically on Russia, the United States, Canada, Latin America (especially Argentina and Brazil), Australia and New Zealand, France, Italy, Africa (Ghana, Burkina Faso, South Africa, and Zambia), and India.

Each session of the course will begin with a contextual lecture by Professor Fleming, followed by a class discussion of the required readings facilitated by two or three designated students along with Professor Fleming.

Prerequisite:

1.0 History course at the 2200 level or above

Course Syllabus

Learning Outcomes:

Students will be able to

- identify major events, concepts, and personalities associated with early manifestations of populism globally

This is a draft outline. 2025-26 version. Please see the course site on OWL Brightspace for a final version.

- interpret information about a wide range of people, groups, events, and documents discussed in the assigned readings and explain their significance
- strengthen-skills of oral and written communication
- analyze primary and secondary sources, including their origins, methods, arguments, strengths, limitations, potential implications, and significance for the study of the global history of populism
- solve research problems by identifying a topic, refining it to a significant and answerable historical question, determining the essential components of the argument, organizing the parts of the essay, and drawing conclusions
- effectively integrate primary and secondary sources within class presentations, discussions, and research essays
- analyze academically the impact of historical precedents that contextualize present day expressions of populism globally

Methods of Evaluation

Research Essay	(due Friday November 21 st)	35%
Seminar Leadership		15%
Seminar Participation		15%
Final Examination		35%

A 3-hour final examination, to be held during the April examination period, will cover all course required readings, lecture and seminar content.

Make-up tests, midterms, and exams can only be approved by Academic Advising. Please see https://history.uwo.ca/undergraduate/program_module_information/policies.html for department procedures and requirements involving make-up tests and exams.

Each student will write a research essay (13-15 typewritten pages in length) on a topic negotiated with the instructor. An electronic copy of the completed research essay must be submitted to Professor Fleming as a Word file via email (kffleming@uwo.ca) no later than Friday November 21st at 11:59 p.m. Any accommodation for this assignment will require supporting documentation.

Each student, in collaboration with one or two other students, will be assigned one seminar to assist the course instructor in leading the class discussion of the required readings for that week. Following the contextual lecture by Professor Fleming, the student(s) will begin the discussion component of the session by providing a brief (approximately 5 minute) summation of the key themes arising from that session's assigned readings. The student(s) will then, together with Professor Fleming, facilitate the class discussion. In preparation for that responsibility, the student(s) will submit to Professor Fleming at least eight substantive questions on which they intend to base the class discussion. Those questions must be emailed to Professor Fleming (kffleming@uwo.ca) no later than 8:00 p.m. the Monday immediately preceding the seminar. Depending on class enrolment, either two or three students will be assigned to lead the same seminar session. It is expected that students will collaborate in developing the questions and facilitating the seminar discussion. The 'seminar leadership' assignments will be made immediately following Session One on Tuesday September 9th.

Students are expected to attend and participate actively in all seminar discussions, thereby demonstrating their comprehension of the Required Readings. All students will be assigned a participation grade on a 10-point scale following each seminar. Failure to attend a seminar will result in a score of “0” for that class. Merely attending a seminar without participating in the discussion will result in a score of “2” for that class. The assignment of a participation grade from “3” to “10” will be determined by the quality of the student’s contributions to discussion during any given seminar.

Absences and Late Assignments:

A late penalty of 5% for the first day and 2% per day thereafter (weekends included) will be assessed against all written work submitted after the due date.

Non-illness absences from seminars are unacceptable. In instances when absence from class is unavoidable, students are expected, when possible, to inform the instructor in advance of their pending absence. Any student attending fewer than nine of the twelve scheduled seminars for non-illness reasons will be assigned a failing grade for seminar participation and a failing grade in the course.

Students must pass all components of the course (research essay; seminar leadership; seminar participation; final examination) to achieve a passing grade in the course.

Additional Statements

Communication policy: The best way to contact me is via email (kfleming@uwo.ca). I also will hold office hours in Lawson Hall 1208 on Wednesdays from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., when you can stop by to discuss course-related matters.

Use of electronic devices: No electronic devices are allowed during the final examination. No use of audio or video recording devices is permitted in the seminar.

Use of generative artificial intelligence (AI): You may use generative AI tools, such as ChatGPT, in this course for activities such as brainstorming and refining your ideas, drafting an outline to organize your thoughts, but not for generating prose. All writing submitted in this course must be your own. Students must append to all written work a brief statement clearly citing, acknowledging, and explaining their use of any such tools. If in doubt, please ask me for clarification.
